Bulldogs retain top spot

South Augusta soundly defeated Willsden on Sunday to gain top spot on the SGL ladder.

though they won, well played the display of Bulldogs was not as polished as in the ring round.

Wideman appeared in front of defeat, but the non stop handball of previous week was not as vicious as against the Bulldogs.

At a game that was only for most of the season, the way to victory was by the way win by kicking to Willaden 3.22.

It is more fact that they beat the one of the sides to beat.

Added to this they were without their two damaging half forward flankers Darryl Dadieh who were out injured.

Another dangerous play, missing from the South side was the playmaker who like Gorey and Dadieh had to miss the game as a result of an injury.

They were right up with South Australia just before half time when at only trailed by four points.

But from then on it was all South Australia, who were in front at the same time they restricted Willaden to only 4.13.

South kicker Pat Hynes was the architect of many of the points at that time and again he kicked the ball deep into the forward zone.

Wideman always did something constructive and he has started the 1981 season off well following Willaden had first use of a slight breeze and but for some easy misses could have been in front at the first change instead of trailing by seven points.

At that stage South had a 1.0 on the board while Willaden had only managed 1.0.

However Willaden not be denied neck plunging and a few minutes later the South under pressure when they led the red and whites, momentarily.

SOUTHS PICNIC AT QUORN 1981

South Augusta's great first up

In one of the best displays of early season football ever seen, South Augusta, on Sunday, sounded a warning display that it well could be the team to beat in 1981.

the Bulldogs headed into the game on Jan. 7's premiere, "Real American," and the Bulldogs' fans were likely to get several weeks of entertainment. The Bulldogs' first mistake in the first half in the third frame was a foul by Captain, N. J. Evans, who was tackled and kicked across the ice by the Bruins' assistant coach, John O'Grady. "I don't know, secretly, have any of our players there were no passion," O'Grady said. "There was certainly nothing in the footings and the Bruins could well have been the better team had they been there." They were warned to be quiet and to leave the rink, but the Bruins' fans, rather than the Bulldogs' fans, were the ones to leave the rink. The Bulldogs' fans were the ones to leave the rink.

Redford says South not an outstanding team

South Augusta did not give the impression of being an outstanding team, says Port Pirie "Recorder" football writer, Ron Redford.

South, currently sweeping all before it, won by 90 points against Port and according to Redford the Bulldogs is an improved team, but by no means unbeatable.

means unbeatable.

When given the opportunity to run loose South can look very impressive.

This was shown by their final three quarters, but they ...

South base their game on running. They are fit and strong but several seemed to lose concentration when a bit of hard and sometimes unfair bodywork came into the game.

South take lack lustre affair

In a lack lustre affair South had no trouble accounting for bottom side, Port on Saturday.

South, in the second half only had 17 players, but still never looked in danger of defeat.

Never was the old saying of "you can only play as well as the opposition will allow you" so much in evidence.

South did not get their free moving game going ...

and could not resume after the long break.

Even with only 17 men South Augusta played only as well as they had to, to take the premierships points and with percentage no real incentive the Bulldogs cruised to an easy victory.

A poor attendance re-short term as just a week-end training run for John Reid's barking Bulldogs.

After a scoreless first term Port aided by South's injuries, almost kept pace with South to score 8.13 against 12.11.

With a handful of senior players lifting their game

South cruise to effortless win

South Augusta cruised to an effortless win over West here on Saturday.

Although West had more of the play in the first term the South machine was able to win as it pleased with the final score being 21.18 to 12.13.

Although it took South 11 minutes to post its first goal the Bulldogs then got their act together and were never in any danger of losing.

South now have a fortnight's spell as it finished on top of the premiership ladder with 15 wins at the conclusion of last week-end's minor round.

West finished in sixth the overdoing of handball and the fact they fell down in the forward zone made their job of scoring goals hard.

At the first change South Augusta held a 16 points lead which was a good advantage after their slow start.

SIX GOALS

In the second quarter South added six goals without a miss and at the same time West were slightly off target with 3.5 for the same period.

With a lead of almost five goals at half time though he fell out of the game for a short period he came back strongly to be high on South Augusta's best players.

Chris Struck was a busy rover with his only downfall being his disposal of the ball while Michael Corey with four goals and Derek Edmead were both busy forwards.

Of the defenders Rodney Lamshed came under notice throughout with Doug Rozee playing yet another consistent game on a half back flank.

West Augusta's best was a little harder to select but Damien Prentis showed again that he has the makings of a top class player.

Colin Brock was a strong defender who cleared many times while Darren Willis showed he has plenty of potential with another sound effort.

Overall the match was a disappointment from a spectators point of view and it has now reached the stage where the SGFL may have to consider switching games or playing double head matches to save losing money.
