

GL football grand finals

South has the personnel and game plan to win five seasons since South last played in a grand final. After a number of seasons after that it was found wanting and it took time to rebuild a side with youngsters from its lower grades.

South took over the coach reins from long-term coach, Pat Hynes, and continued the rebuilding work was rewarded with third spot last season when it defeated Peter "Boof" Rivers. In his first season as coach, he has the team in the grand final. This season South has lacked authority.

with Turner will be a beauty. Keeler runs all day, is a superb disposer with either hand or foot, and feeds his running play. Wingman Schmerl and Michael Maloney contrasts.

The pacy, skilled Schmerl on his day is capable of curtail the Port run and spread of strength.

South's chances could well depend on how directly it is able to move the ball into its forward half. The fast leading forwards that metre break that difference.

Port hot favorite to make three SGL flags in a row

Port will go into its third successive grand final the hot favorite to make it in a row.

It was only two weeks ago that Port South in the second semi final and comprehensively defeated it to the tune of 34-0.

South was disappointing in that game as it struggled to curtail the Port run and spread of strength.

Port's South defence, so often its strength this season, was not able to stem the Port attack.

each of these premierships it comes the game as the "underdog" opponent on each occasion. Port's week's foe, Port.

When it comes to comparing sides you find that Port has experience, it is versatile with many players capable of playing in a variety of positions.

It works as hard as any side in competition and players support each other and coach, Bob Boston.

Port's Duncan Savage wins Madigan M

Duncan Savage won the SGL's top honor, the Madigan Medal, when he polled 20 votes to comfortably defeat Solomontown's Craig Tee on 16 points. Tied for third, one point behind Tee with 15 votes, were Jarrod Corbell (West) and Kieron Keeler (South). As the top vote getters for Port Augusta clubs, Corbell and Keeler tied for The Transcontinental Medal. Savage was a worthy winner as he missed the last five matches following a knee injury suffered at Quorn much finished his season. Savage epitomises the requirements of the League's strict and most brilliant player.

Even though I believe that Port win, this game will be much closer than its other contests this season especially the result a fortnight ago. Neither coach will have to work hard to stir its players as they know that they are all committed. This will be an epic struggle and if it relaxes even a little, it may find itself young, fast South side grabbing chance. I have to pick Port on its performance this season but believe that South will make it fight all the way for victory. I don't know what coach 'Yabby' Booth said to his players at quarter time, but his charges came out with a different resolve, scoring 4-2 to 1-1 and at half-time a boilover was on the cards if the Lions could repeat that effort.

South wins dour struggle

South 4.16 (40)
West 4.9 (33)

South went about the business of winning a football match in typical fashion when it outpointed West in a dour struggle at Central Oval on Saturday.

This was typical finals football with neither side prepared to give an inch.

Rarely were we able to see any free flowing football, as the pressure was intense all day.

South clearly demonstrated that it doesn't take a swag of goals to win a football match.

It wanted to win a little more than West and that

West's endeavor also could not be achieved as players had to battle for every possession.

When they were successful in possession, players were pounced on, as the game was a rugby scrum.

The umpires were continually in the thick of the ball as often two or three players were in possession.

As a result, the game was not a pleasant one to watch.

Goals were at a premium, with South totalling for the match (four each).

However, the closeness of the match was for any deficiencies in skill level, determination the keys.

When the sides lined up at the South made a mockery of the predictions by continuing to dominate after defeating Central in the preliminary final at Central Oval on Saturday.

The complete team performance rarely allowed the opposition to dictate the play. The second best in the league, Port, stifled rare Central moves and their midfield dominance.
